

Workers' Compensation FAQs: Part Three, Filing Your Claim

In The Khaki Law Firm's newest blog series, we are answering the questions we frequently receive about Workers' Compensation Law in Georgia. More specifically, what exactly is workers compensation, when should you file a claim, and how The Khaki Law Firm can take the burden of the claims process of your shoulders.

In part one of our blog, we discussed what workers' compensation benefits are, when coverage begins, and when to report an accident. Part two covered when you are entitled to benefits, for how long, and what happens if you do not receive those benefits. Part three focuses on filing your workers' compensation claim and scheduling a hearing with the State Board of Workers'

Compensation.

1. I did not receive my workers' compensation benefits, and I need to file a claim. How do I do that? The Georgia Board of Workers' Compensation provides Form WC-14 for filing claims. You can obtain this form on the Board's website. The form includes instructions for submitting the document to the Board and to the parties involved. If you would like help with this process, you can contact The Khaki Law Firm at (678) 798-8799 or info@thekhakilawfirm.com. Our team would be happy to help guide you through the application process to make sure you meet all deadlines and that your claim portrays all available evidence in the best possible light.

WORKERS COMPENSATION &
SOCIAL SECURITY DISABILITY

"Thank you so very much for everything you have done for me for my disability hearing. I am so very impressed by your skill, intelligence, professionalism, and character... Everyone at the firm made me feel like a priority and from my first call with Sara til my last call with Asia... I felt like I was in the best hands possible. I not only thank you, but I truly honor you and the contributions you make to improve the quality of people's lives."
